

Think it through.

Questions need answers before you can decide what is best:

- ◆ Do you have enough time and energy after school/work to care for an infant or toddler?
- ◆ Can you commit to providing the vital emotional and financial support your child will need as they grow up?

These are difficult questions, with no right or wrong answers. Only you can make this decision after you have thoroughly explored your feelings and analyzed your situation.

Not your typical adoption agency.

We are not a traditionally structured adoption agency. We are unique from others in that we make your wishes our priority. ACI has experienced and caring adoption counselors who can help you explore your feelings about the decision you will be making. We understand the tremendous weight of the decision you are facing and believe that you should be presented with all the options available to you.

We understand.

Our free counseling services are available to all expectant parents and birthparents, free of charge, even if you are undecided on adoption. Speaking with us in no way commits you to an adoption plan.

We advocate for YOU

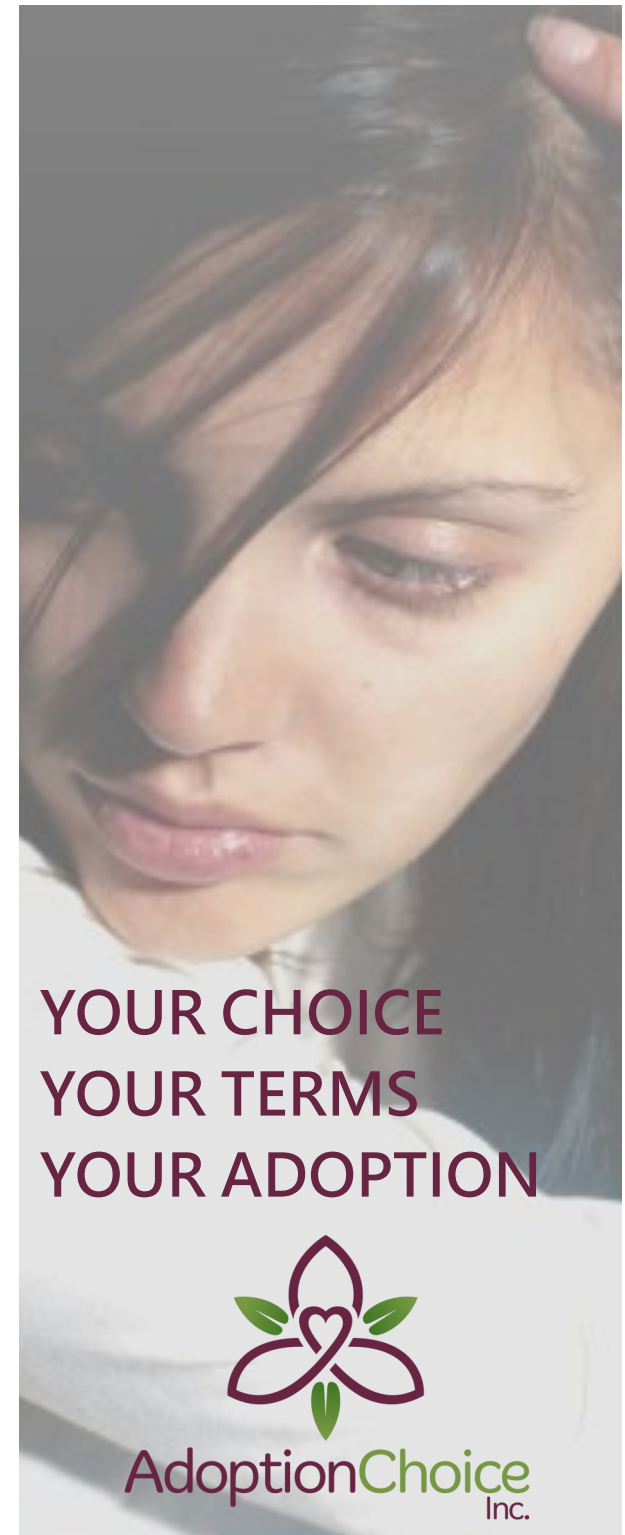

Our family of professionals at Adoption Choice are ready to be your contact for information, your coach through the adoption process, your confidant during this emotionally challenging time and a cheerleader throughout your pregnancy.

Every adoption is unique and can be customized to the needs and desires of the expectant birthparents.

Create Your Own Adoption Plan

- ◆ You choose the adoptive family from our parent profile listing if you have not already chosen someone you know.
- ◆ You choose the amount of contact you want with the adoptive family during the process and after the adoption.
- ◆ You choose where and how to deliver the baby, and who will join you for the birth of your child.
- ◆ We can assist with informing the birthfather and other family members of your adoption decision and help them understand the process.

You and your baby deserve...

Support

Information, resources and counseling are provided to help you make the best choices about your pregnancy, your baby and your adoption.

A personal relationship with a counselor based on trust and respect, is imperative. She will listen and help with you through every decision, including whether or not adoption is right for you.

Service

We will assist in finding resources to help with your living expenses, which include rent, utilities, food, and clothing, as allowed by Wisconsin law.

We will connect you with resources to help with medical expenses, which include prenatal care, hospital, and delivery charges.

We can provide you with resources to find transportation to and from doctors appointments.

We will handle all legal and adoption procedures at no cost to you.

We always conduct a detailed screening process for prospective adoptive parents to ensure that you have the best families from which to choose.
